

NURS 418: Maternal-Newborn Nursing

This course builds on the concepts of previous nursing courses with emphasis on utilizing the nursing process in dealing with women's health, maternity and the newborn. Students will explore the concepts of health promotion, disease prevention, and alterations in health-related to women and the newborn. Emphasis is on whole-person care of childbearing families.

3 Theory 1 Clinical/Lab

Credits: 4

Prerequisites:

All 200 and 300 level nursing courses

Program: Nursing

Semester Offered: Fall

Spring