

PSYC 470: Counseling Theory & Techniques

A study of various theories and techniques used in the counseling process. Study will also include techniques for interviews, administration, questionnaires, and records used in guidance work by teachers, ministers, counselors, and psychologists. Study will include the ethics and principles involved in the counseling process as they relate to the counselor, as well as the situation, and is the final portfolio checkpoint. This class meets the requirements for the Communication Competencies for General Education. Senior year only.

Credits: 3

Prerequisites:

PSYC 212

PSYC 220

PSYC 222

PSYC 415

Senior Status

Program: Psychology

Semester Offered: Spring