

HIST 303: Geographic Information Systems for Social Science and Criminal Justice

The course includes lectures and computer lab time to explore GIS methods used throughout the social sciences. Students will learn the theories and techniques needed to use GIS software to execute detailed analyses of information in disciplines such as crime analysis, historical analysis, and political and global problem solving.

Credits: 3

Program: History & Social Science

Semester Offered: Spring