

MUCT 420: Music Composition and Technology

A course focusing on smaller compositional forms, including ABA, theme and variation and sonatina, as they pertain to contemporary composition. Class will also include lectures on melodic and harmonic development, form, and listening to significant 20th century musical movements. The use of technology and its place in the classroom is studied and implemented into the core curriculum.

Credits: 3

Prerequisites:

MUCT 221

or permission of the instructor

Program: Music

Semester Offered: Fall