

NURS 435: Nursing Ethics

This course is designed to provide students with the opportunity to both explore the ethical dimensions of health care practices and develop skills in ethical decision making. The course will assist students to clarify values and promote moral reflection in the context of contemporary health-care challenges with regards to professional standards. 3 Theory

Credits: 3

Prerequisites: For the RN to BS Nursing Student, or permission of the instructor.

Program: Nursing